Natural Skin, Ears, and Throat Health Support with Aromatherapy Essential Oils

In the early 1900's, French chemist Dr. R.M. Gattefosse' seriously burned his hand in his laboratory. The closest thing to him was a vat of essential oils of lavender. He plunged his hand into the fluid. To his amazement, not only did the pain stop, but the burned tissues healed quickly and completely! Until this time, no one had suspected that essential oils had such therapeutic healing capabilities. He began using various essential oils in military hospitals and had astounding healing results.

Most often thought of as "aromatherapy" because of the aromatic effects on the limbic system of the brain and the nervous system, essential oils have very strong physical healing abilities, as well. Essential oils are known to be antiseptic, and many have strong anti-bacterial and anti-viral actions. Before the development of antibiotics, aromatics were found to give protection from the European Plagues to the few that used them in the Middle Ages and again in the 1600's.

Today, more and more people are turning to natural remedies for fighting the increasing virulence of 'bugs'. Instead of killing off necessary and beneficial bacteria as well as those that are harmful, and also causing the mutation of bacteria into more dangerous forms like synthesized antibiotics have been proven to do, essential oils handle the problem without damaging and imbalancing health and encouraging rebound problems.

Aromaceutical Essential Oil Blends by Cedar Bear Naturales™ have had a long track record with health and well-being and are based on the clinical aromatherapy work of LoR. Caarl Robinson, who over 20 years ago was the first practicing clinical Aromatherapist in the Western hemisphere. The essential oils used in these blends are premium grade and are cut (premixed) with organic olive oil to just the right proportions so they can conveniently be used right out of the bottle.

EAR-Aid™ Essential Oil Blend (Garlic & Mullein Blend)
